1973 WINNER OF THE JOHN B. RUSSWURM TROPHY FOR JOURNALISM EXCELLENCE

NEW YEAR BRINGS 55 M.P.H.

The Sacramento Chapter of the National Urban League held a community Christmas party last week, at the Oak Park Athletic Club. Over 300 local residents attended the event. One feature was a Black Santa Claus played by Ted Carter, Urban League Coordinator of Project Co-operation Endeavors. Santa is shown here as he talked with youngsters concerning their Christmas wishes. The youngsters seemed comfortable with Santa regardless of his skin color.

FINAL FILING DATE JANUARY 7th

SOUTHSIDE COUNCIL ELECTION

Election of the Southside Neighborhood Council Advisory Board, will be held at 4 p.m., January 11, 1974, at the Council office, 631 "T" Street.

Final filing date for candidacy is January 7, 1974, and filing forms, By-Laws, and additional information can be obtained at 631 "T" Street, daily between 8 a.m., and 5 p.m., or by calling 443-1963.

More candidates are needed to fill the seven board positions, according to the Southside Neighborhood Council staff, and candidates must be a resident of the area, Council member, and at least 18 years of age.

The Southside Neighborhood Council, a non-profit Community Program sponsored by the Sacramento Area Economic Opportunity Council, (SAEOC), provides various services to low-income residents in that area, including emergency food and clothing, transportation, referrals and counseling.

All services given by the program are free of charge.

NNPD Mid-Winter Workshop Slated

WASHINGTON - Berkeley G. Burrell, president of the National Business League, will address the opening luncheon of the National Newspaper Publishers Association Mid-Winter Workshop, Jan. 23 - 26 at the Playboy Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach.

"Burrell will discuss how the Black Press can help facelift Black businesses by encouraging them to shift from rhetoric and fantasy to the business realities of the 1970's," says Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett, NNPA president, and editor and publisher of the San Francisco Sun - Reporter. Burrell will speak at noon on Jan. 24.

In addition to heading up the Business League, he is vice chairman of President Nixon's Advisory Council for Minority Enterprise, chairman of Minority Contractors Resource Center, and president of Merchant Prince Corporation and Burrell's Superb Cleaners here.

BURRELL

Theme of the Workshop is "Black Press - Catalyst for Economic Change." The sessions will focus on "Improving Business Management of Black Newspapers," "Building Circulation," "New Thrusts in News and Feature Content," "Opening Doors of Advertisers," "Improving Advertising Salesmanship," and "The Business Forecast for '74.

Following the three - day Workshop, which will open Wednesday evening, Jan. 23, with a reception, the delegation will fly to the Bahamas for an overnight stay on Saturday, Jan. 26.

Gerald Ford Praised

WASHINGTON - Newly sworn in Vice President Gerald R. Ford received hearty congratulations and an active demonstration of appreciation from Grand Rapids OIC leaders and the national OIC Government Relations Director.

Dr. Leon Sullivan visited with Congressman Gerald Ford and the Chairman of the Board of the Grand Rapids OIC to convey appreciation for the support Ford had given during the OIC funding crisis last summer.

The occasion was the Legislative Education Workshop conducted by the OIC Government Relations Office under the direction of Dr. Maurice Dawkins. One hundred and ten OIC Board Chairmen visited their Congressman to learn about the progress of House Bill HR 11010 which was passed on Thursday, November 28, 1973 and is currently in Conference between the House and the Senate.

Through the leadership of Mr. Ford, the Republican Congressman joined with the Democratic majority to make certain that OIC was protected in the legislation.

Dr. Sullivan and Mr. Ford agreed that OIC expansion in the State of Michigan and other midwestern states. with a focus on rural job development should be pushed hard in coming months in view of the high rate of unemployment among Blacks and poor whites alike.

Mr. Ford was also supported by the testimony of Dr. Maurice Dawkins before the Senate Rules Committee and the House Judiciary Committee, where his nomination was advocated and endorsed.

Dr. Dawkins, in his testimony said: "I hope and believe that this man - as a pragmatist who believes in the democratic process will use a pragmatic approach in the arena of human relations as Vice President. I hope and believe that he will recognize the need for government and its agencies to assume its share of responsibility for enforcing the law of the land in the area of human rights because human relations accountability is as necessary as fiscal accountability. I hope and believe that in an era of polarization and the incredible spectre of Northern Ireland, the pragmatic imperative and historical necessity for reconciliation between classes and races in this nation will lead this man to work to facilitate policy decisions in both the Executive and Legislative branches of government that will help us reach the national goal of economic security and equal opportunity in our lifetime . I hope and believe he might conceivably help to foster a record in domestic peacemaking by this and future administrations to match the impressive efforts in international peacemaking of the current President."

OUR CITY

An unidentified couple enjoying the pot-luck dinner festivities at Donner Elementary School's "Love Feast."

DONNER ELEMENTRY HOSTS CHRISTMAS 'LOVE FEAST'

In keeping with the school's inter-group relations activities throughout the year, an International Christmas Love Feast was held at Donner Elementary School last month. The principal of the school, Mrs. Charlotte Moss, greeted and welcomed the guests.

The event was well attended by students, parents, teachers and guests. The food was provided by those who attended. Each brought a dish of their choice to share in the feast.

The theme of Donner School's International Christmas Love Feast, was brotherly love but, a love of good food also came in handy.

The students of Mrs. Joyce Chatman's class, along with student teacher, Mrs. Linda Andrews, conducted a "research" project to learn how children of other countries celebrate Christmas. After the research, the students made posters for illustration.

The classes of Otto Isaac, Mrs. Lana Ferguson, Mrs. Kathy Aoki, and Mrs. Wilma Nafus, provided the Christmas decoration while an ensemble formed by a group of student teachers, provided the music for the festivities.

The community guests joined in the singing of Christmas carols and went away from the affair full of food, love and the "Christmas Spirit."

HRD Undergoes Name Change

The public was reminded today that, effective January 1, the State's public employment service has changed its name from Department of Human Resources Development (HRD) to Employment Development Department (EDD).

Earl Brian, California's Secretary of Health and Welfare, said this was one of several changes in the State's manpower operations proposed by the Reagan Administration to improve employment services.

These changes were incorporated in the California Employment Development Act, jointly sponsored by Senator Robert J. Lagomarsino (R-Ventura), and Assemblyman Bill Greene (D-Los Angeles).

The Act was passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Reagan in October.

Employment Offices throughout the State, will continue to serve jobseekers, unemployment insurance claimants, disability insurance claimants and all others who need help, including employers seeking workers, Brian said.

The new department, under the Act, becomes part of a coordinated manpower planning system established within the Health and Welfare Agency. Dwight Geduldig, Director of the Department of Human Resources Development, will continue as Director of the Employment Development Department.

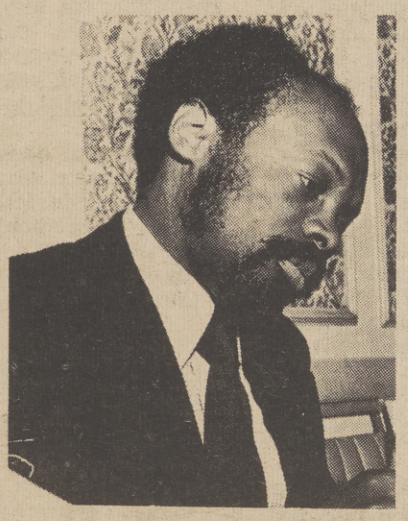
The Act also establishes the California Manpower Planning Council, Brian said, which will be responsible to the Governor for developing positive solutions to the State's manpower problems. It will review and coordinate activities of local manpower planning organizations to make sure the best use is made of available manpower funds.

Its members include representatives of city, county and state government as well as citizens representing labor, business and other client groups, he said.

A major concern of the new Manpower Planning Council will be statewide coordination of manpower training programs, he said.

"Major cities and counties will be receiving manpower revenue sharing funds directly from the federal government to pay for manpower programs developed to meet local needs.

Willie Brown To Speak At SCC



BROWN

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, Jr., will speak at Sacramento City College, Tuesday, January 8, 1974. The lecture topic is "Legal Considerations and Sexuality," and scheduled for 7:30 p.m., in the college auditorium.

Assemblyman Brown represents the 18th District, San Francisco, and serves as chair-person of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. He is a member of the Efficiency and Cost Controls Committee, Elections and Reapportionment Committee, Health Committee, California Commission of Aging, Select Committee on Health Manpower and the Joint Committee on Siting of Teaching Hospitals.

The lecture is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

The program is co-sponsored by the Psychology 25 - Human Sex Behavior class and the Office of Community Services at the college.

Adult Education Registration

Registration for Adult Education classes in the Sacramento City Unified School District will be held January 2 through January 4, 1974. Classes begin Monday, January 7, 1974.

More than 10,000 students are currently enrolled in Adult Education Avocational/Vocational and Academic classes.

For more information, call the school of your choice: Fremont Adult, 454-8751; Hiram Johnson Adult, 454-8775; Luther Burbank Adult, 454-8485; or the Skills and Business Education Center, 454-8351.

BLACK SOLONS

AGAINST FORD

Ten of the 15 voting members of the Congressional Black Caucus voted against Ford's confirmation as Vice President.

Rep. Andrew Young, (D-Ga.) who said his vote was "faith and hope" that Ford would grow in the job, cast the sole black vote for Ford. The remaining four did not vote.

When Ford, who had been absent during the five hours of debate, came on the floor after the vote was completed, all the blacks but Rep. Charles B. Rangel, (D-N.Y.) had disappeared and did not take part in the standing ovation for the Vice President.

Most of the blacks opposed Ford's confirmation until Congress disposes of the question of whether to impeach President Nixon, which the Black Caucus favors.

Rangel, a member of the Judiciary Committee, which approved, said the Vice President was a "carbon copy" of Nixon and by confirming him Congress would become a willing party "to the Continuation of the morally bankrupt leadership of the last five years.

Rep. John Conyers Jr., another Democratic committee member and fellow Michigan representative questioned Ford's philosophy and whether a person with his philosophy should be elevated to a higher office.

Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, (D-Md.) asked his colleagues, "Does he (Ford) have that indefinable quality to get us out of the quagmire of Watergate?... you know he doesn't."

Mitchell said, "This vote to confirm Gerald Ford will come back to haunt the House" just as past votes "for expediency" have haunted Congress.

But Young said he had doubts as a black southerner about Presidents Kennedy and Johnson before they took office, but they proved him wrong afterwards.

REPRESENTATIVE FORD'S RELENTLESS EFFORTS TO UNDERCUT THE OPEN HOUSING LAW, THE RIGHT-TO-VOTE LAW, AND VIRTUALLY EVERY OTHER CIVIL RIGHTS STATUTE OF THE PAST DECADE AFFORD NO COMFORT TO THE NATION'S NEGRO CITIZENS AND ARE CLEARLY OUT OF STEP WITH MAJORITY SENTIMENT IN THIS COUNTRY WITH REGARD TO RACIAL EQUALITY.

HIS LEGISLATIVE RECORD IS REMARKABLY LACKING IN COMPASSION.

FROM NONSTANDARD TO STANDARD ENGLISH

Exploring How Black Children Cope

In the not uncommon way that things pertaining to racial matters tend to get confused, the idea that people cannot be separate and equal sometimes gets twisted to suggest that the races cannot be different and equal.

Thus the fact of racial differences - whether in language or culture - is seen to imply deficiencies.

And the "differences," as they are politely called, get all the attention, while what they mean to children who must deal with them goes unexplored.

This has certainly been the case in "nonstandard" English, the dialect spoken by many Blacks. It has been all too easy to assume carelessly that "he goin" instead of "he is going," and "John cousin" instead of "John's cousin" bespeak low intelligence, and to let it go at that.

The poor classroom performance and the low scores Black students are likely to get on standardized IQ tests seem evidence enough, and few are interested in probing any further.

Although William Hall, a psychologist at Princeton University in 1971, was concerned about the low test scores of Black children, he was even more puzzled by them. Hall was sure Black children are as "smart" as white children, but still he was not able to explain their behavior on tests.

Although linguists had already emphasized that nonstandard English was linguistically different - but not all deficient in internal logic - Hall thought that the fact that it was different might somehow interfere in testing.

Untangling some of the cognitive operations involved in speaking a nonstandard language, researchers like Hall have hoped, might be a step towards resolving some of the practical problems of education for many Black children.

Hall noticed that a boy, whose family spoke only Portuguese, did not test well if given the normal time restraints, but with additional time, did exceptionally well. This led Hall to believe that perhaps the boy "thought" in Portuguese and had to translate questions into his native language to come up with an answer and then translate the answer back into English.

The child, it seemed, needed time to complete all the mental operations this involved. Hall reasoned that Blacks, too, might be taking tests in a "foreign" (for them) language, and that the time and complexity "translation" required might account for some lower scores.

To explore this possibility, Hall, with the backing of a Corporation grant, initiated a series of experiments, using 300 children (a group of 180 whites and a group of 180 Blacks). His data indicate that children comprehend information or "encode" it in their memory in their most familiar dialect.

Children retrieve this information to respond to a sentence in the same form in which they encoded it - which may or may not be in the same dialect that the sentence was said to them. While white children do better than Black children in responding to sentences given in standard English, Black children do better on nonstandard sentences.

At the same time, all children tend to increase

NAACP Sues U.S. On Building Jobs

WASHINGTON -- The NAACP filed suit this week to force the Labor Department to set goals and timetables for the hiring of minority workers in the construction industry.

The suit, filed in United States District Court, challenged the federally financed "hometown plans" for employing minority workers and a directive by Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan requiring state and local governments to refrain from enforcing their own equal employment laws in areas covered by the federal plan.

Herbert Hill, labor director for the NAACP, said in a statement that the legal action was intended to sustain the validity of imposed goals and timetables for the employment of nonwhite workers in publicly financed construction, as well as to have the Brennan memorandum declared null and void.

"Ever since Reconstruction we have looked to the Federal Government for protection against the violations of rights of black people by states and local communities," he said.

"Now with Nixon and Brennan as Secretary of Labor, the pattern has been reversed. Today, we are forced to defend more effective local programs against federal practices which subsidize racial discrimination in employment in defiance of the law."

The NAACP charged that the Brennan memorandum, issued last March, has, in effect, prevented enforcement of anti-discrimination laws.

on the go with cocoa

By G. COCOA WALTHER

As the old year rapidly disappears and the new is upon us, I would like to share with each of you an exclusive interview that I recently had with "Father Time!"

The OBSERVER'S special correspondent (ye olde scribe), has been able to obtain an exclusive interview with one of the Season's most prominent figures - 'Father Time.' Tired though he has walked weary through 365 days around the Earth, he graciously took a few minutes out of his schedule 'precious minutes' before the arrival of the 'New Year,' to talk with this reporter about certain matters of great interest to children of all ages, all walks of life, all nationalities throughout the world.

Settled into an easy chair in the corner of his last moments of the year, nursing a cup of Christmas Punch and giving occasional directions to the 'baby of 1974,' Father Time discussed his worldwide mystique and illuminated some issues which have puzzled ages for centuries.

"I guess the thing some people are most curious about, is whether or not I'm real," he said with a chuckle. Most people never see me on the job, you know, since I work around the clock and especially in many countries around the world, I find that in practical America, people often tend to doubt things they can't see. Everytime the clock ticks a second, I'm real, for sixty-seconds are a minute, and sixty minutes are an hour, and twenty-four hours are a day, and so on, and my life each year is just but for 365 days, give or take one if it is a leap year.

But if people would only rely a little more on their hearts instead of their eyes and minds, they'd realize that I'm real as Season's joy and hope and love, Father Time said.

"Now just think for a moment. When you're trying to decide what to give to someone very special, and you are thinking about all that person means to you, and you are suddenly filled with warmth and love, that feeling is real right? I mean, you can really feel it; it's really there.

Well, that's how real I am!

"And when your trimming the tree with your family or sharing other holiday pleasures, with people close to you and you suddenly feel very happy and very lucky and maybe even like singing. I'm also as real as that.

"And when you're snuggled in bed on Christmas Eve, either too excited to sleep and listening for a distant sound of sleigh bells, or maybe just feeling a little special without really knowing why, that feeling is real too, isn't it?

"And through the rest of the year, I'm also as real as the strongest hope in your heart."

"And when your wishing for selfish things like a doll, or a train, why not wish for honesty and peace throughout the world, and you want it so badly, that it almost hurts, I'm as real as that hopeful ache."

"Now once you understand this," Father Time continued, "It's easy to answer all the other questions I'm most frequently asked.

"Time can hold as many gifts for people as your heart can hold love. In other words, it's bottomless."

"You see," Father Time said, "where there is real Seasonal spirit and just a little belief in the ability of the human heart to work magic and miracles, there is the gift of time, extending to another year and yet another year, and don't let anybody try to tell you different."

It's almost time for me to go, to usher the old year of '73 out, and make way for the infancy of '74 to come in, but let me share this thought with you. "If you look into the hearts of those you're sharing New Year's with this morning, I think you'll be able to judge for yourself wehther or not I got what I wanted, from this past year.

In the twinkling of an eye, he was off, the clock striking twelve, only to begin to prepare the infant of 1974 for the long three-hundred and sixty-five days to come.

As the final hours of the old year tick off, I would like to remember friends one and all, Mary Wilson of The Supremes, for your great inspiration in '73, Lou Rawls, Joe Williams, Willie Bobo, Johnny Mathis, Regina Randle, Billy Dee Williams, Audrey P. Franklyn, Ella Fitzgerald, Ramona and Ken Cromwell, Frank Worthington, Curly Synon, Talmadge Grundy, Quincy Mann, Jerry Lopes, Ray Logan, Lee and Dot Williams, Joyce Davis, Isaac Hayes, Marvin Gaye, Curtis and Joanne not to forget Sherman, Wendell P. Johnson, Ed Kelly, Bob King, Richard Dickson, Steve and Diane Dickson, Mary Love, Quincy Jones, Bre, Barbara Dotson and all the Bunnies from the San Francisco Club, Sylvia Law, Cathy and Al Baccari and staff, Hanns and Ginny Kolmar, Camille Barnes, Walt Von Haffe, Ann Belfer, The gang from Jack Wodell's, Clarie Harrison and staff, Cleo, Roberta Flack, Tracy, Tina, Caprice, Lee Jr., Monday, Runetta, Crumb, and Allen, the list could go on and on, but especially to Karolyn Raush of Circle Star Theatre, she is a beauty, Chuck Gatling may all your dreams in 1974 come true, Margo Skinner, a hard worker, who deserves far more recognition than she gets, to Lady Diane at the Richmond BART Station and we mustn't forget Leonard, eh, wherever they put him.

The list could go, one or two every day, but these are people who need people, working with people like Gerry Lange and Belva Davis Moore (who gave me my first taste of ink and newswriting, Don Welcher who gave me my first job on a paper, Winnie Cotton and the old staff at KSOL, Lavelle Robey, Mel Stewart, Jackie and Roy, Irene Charles, the publisher and the staff of THE OBSERVER and to Dave and Barbara Erdman (oops we forgot Isaac), and then there is Cleora, Bill Smallwood, Clarice and Ernie and Oakhaven, hoping that in '74, that dream like the late Martin Luther Kings will be a reality.

To George Freeman and his guitar too, not to forget Groove Holmes, Sacate, The Patchwork Quilt, Triple Sounds Inc., Carolyn Blakey and all of those wonderful entertainers and friends I have had the special time and place to write about this past year, but especially to Randy Crawford, Frances Coche, Odia Coats and Frieda Payne, thank you. Paul Mack to a better year with the Fox-Oakland, Wally Cox and Billy Barnes, and for the one that friendship means M.T.T.Y., and to all of those I have missed I would like to take this opportunity to wish you Season Holidays and the best of every in the New Year.

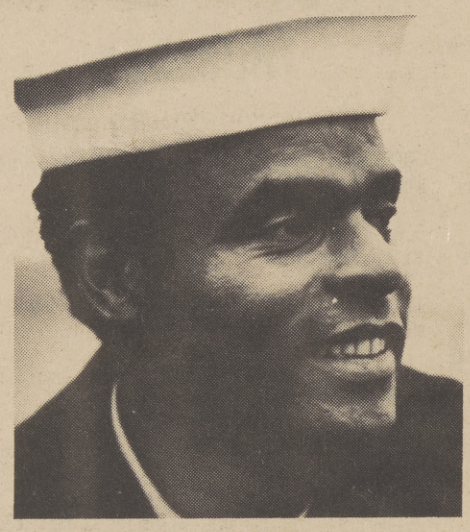
'THE LAST DETAIL'



OTIS YOUNG

Otis Young, who stars as a naval petty officer in "The Last Detail," an Acrobat Film produced by Gerald Ayres for Columbia Pictures release, posed an awkward problem for the U.S. Marine Corps back in 1949.

"I came from a family of 14 and my parents wanted me to work," he recalls. "I wanted to stay in school and go to college. But that proved impossible so I left home and, as I was getting on a bus, I saw an advertisement for the Marines.

"There were not many Blacks in the Marines in those days and they told me I was acceptable but would have to be a steward's mate. When I found out what that was about, I said no. Then they got me to take their entrance test. Well, I got 97 out of 100 questions right and that gave the Marines a big problem.

Now they really wanted me, but I was still not about to take the steward's job. So they said if I waited for a few months, they would try to find something else for me. They sent for me at 7 a.m. a month later and I was made a rifleman."

The film is a drama with a great deal of salty humor about two veteran Navy men (Young and Jack Nicholson) assigned to take a much younger sailor (Randy Quaid) to the brig after he has been convicted and sentenced for stealing money from a charity collection box.

By bus and train the three men travel up the Eastern seaboard, making unexpected stops at bars and brothels, seeing the dingy waiting rooms missed by those who travel by jet. Along the way, a friendship develops among the three.

As the Marines learned Otis Young is selective and does not care to play stereotype roles. In "The Last Detail," he is a Navy officer who just happens to be Black. He is also teaming with Jack Nicholson for the first time even though they have known each other for a number of years.

Nicholson and Young first met in the streets of Los Angeles in 1966, when Jack yelled across to Otis that he liked his performance in the James Baldwin play, "Blues for Mr. Charlie," which Young had already played in New York and at the World Drama Festival in London. He refused a role in the play for a San Francisco production, but spurred on by the reviews, he decided to stay in Hollywood.

The warm weather came in handy, for it was two years before Young made his big break - as a co-star with Don Murray in the television series, "The Outcasts." It was Nicholson who called him about the series, urging him to take the role. Young remembers he hesitated because he wanted to break into films and not television. "I remember Jack saying, 'It's a good series - and they're shooting 26 episodes. You can't afford not to take it if they want you."

Since then, he's done a film, also with Don Murray - "Call Me By My Rightful Name." Otis started preparing for that lead years ago when the play was first produced off-Broadway in 1961.

"I had just finished training at the Neighborhood Playhouse," Young recalls. "But after being offered a series of stage roles as a pimp, I began working as a stage manager. 'Call Me By My Rightful Name,' was the first production I worked on - as stage manager and understudy for Alvin Ailey. I never did get to play the lead - till I was asked to do the movie."

A writer in his spare time, Young last year wrote and produced his own play in Los Angeles called "Right On Brother," a social protest play which received warm critical praise.

Largest All - Black Cast In 'Uptown Saturday Night'

For the movie "Uptown Saturday Night," Executive Producer-Director Sidney Poitier has done a remarkable job of casting on two levels.

First, he has assembled the largest all-Black cast of stars in Hollywood motion picture history.

Second, with the help of assistants, he has assembled an impressive cast of supporting players and extras.

Poitier, wearing three hats in the production, heads the cast of stars and superstars. Joining him in the cast of stars are: Bill Cosby, Harry Belafonte, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, Rosalind Cash, Roscoe Lee Browne, Paula Kelly, and Calvin Lockhart.

The presence of the aforementioned stars in "Uptown Saturday Night," a comedy revoling around the adventures and misadventures of Poitier and Cosby as they attempt to apprehend bandits who have robbed them in an after-hours club, is a popular conversation piece in the movie industry today.

"Sidney Poitier is the only man who could have assembled such a large cast of Black superstars," one veteran Hollywood watcher has said. "The fact they have joined him in this film is testimony to the high esteem in which they hold him."

He is right. Bill Cosby freely admits his admiration for Poitier. Belafonte and Poitier have been friends and associates ever since the time of Harlem's American Negro Theatre many years ago. Flip Wilson selected "Uptown Saturday Night" in which to make his feature film debut in a special cameo role.

While checking the overall cast list, one is struck immediately by the oddity of so many sports-connected actors having small roles in "Uptown Saturday Night." But this is, perhaps, an extension of the Jim Brown success saga in movies.

One of the dramatic stars, Roscoe Lee Browne, formerly was noted for his performances in track. But no less than five members of the supporting cast are now, or have been, deeply involved with sports. They are:

Mike Warren, former UCLA basketball player; Earl Maynard, a well-known wrestler; Wendell Tucker, formerly with the Los Angeles Rams; Baby Cassius, a fighter who advertises his profession with purple Cadillac license plate which carry the word "boxing;" and Essex Smith, formerly a champion gymnast in the East and a Temple University student at the time Cosby attended the school.

But the most famous dancer in this category is Harold Nicholas, one-half of the internationally-famous Nicholas Brothers duo which performed in many classic Hollywood musicals in earlier years.

Nicholas, the smallest man in the movie, portrays a ghetto hoodlum leader.

Also to be seen in "Uptown Saturday Night," are Francois Andre, a veteran actor and Hollywood motion picture columnist; Gatemouth Moore, who was once famous as a colorful evangelist; and Ms. Amentha Dymally former wife of California State Sen. Mervyn Dymally and an actress in many Southern California - area plays.

"Uptown Saturday Night," produced by Mel Tucker, is derived from Poitier's original story. Richard Wesley has written the screenplay.

The movie is a Verdon production for First Artists and will be released through Warner Bros.

Four Black-star actors are caught in an unusual profile photograph as they work in a church scene in "Uptown Saturday Night," a comedy film revolving around the adventures and misadventures of two buddies, Sidney Poitier and Bill Cosby, who seek to apprehend the bandits who held them up in an after-hours club. Shown, left to right, are: Cosby, Poitier, Harry Belafonte, and Calvin Lockhart. The film is being made in Hollywood by Poitier's company, Verdon Productions, for First Artists. Poitier wears three hats as Executive Producer, Director, and acting star. Mel Tucker is the producer. "Uptown Saturday Night," will be released through Warner Bros.

G. W. Carver Luncheon Slated

Miss Dorothy I. Height, President of the National Council of Negro Women, Inc., an organization with an outreach to four million women, will be the main speaker at the annual George Washington Carver Awards Luncheon to be held on Friday, January 4, 1974, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

In her capacity as President of the NCNW, Miss Height has led the way in combating chronic malnutrition, bad housing, inferior education and other problems of poor people.

DOROTHY HEIGHT

Under her leadership, NCNW has initiated self-help food production programs, established daycare centers in both rural and urban communities, and assisted in providing 40,000 units of housing that are home ownership for low income families, known as Turn Key III.

Miss Height was born in Richmond, Virginia, and received her master's degree from New York University, followed by advanced study there and at the New York School of Social Work. She holds a degree of Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Tuskegee Institute of Alabama, and from Coppin State College of Baltimore, Maryland; and Harvard University awarded her the Honorary Doctorate of Laws.

Miss Height is director of the Center for Racial Justice of the Young Women's Christian Association of the USA where she has been active in developing leadership training and interracial education programs since 1944.

From 1937 to the present time, Miss Height has served both the government and the Black community in many areas including social services, religious and educational. She has traveled widely in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America to fulfill these capacities.

The 30th Annual George Washington Carver Awards Luncheon on January 4th, is held for the benefit of Camp Achievement, near Connellsville, Pa., this year also celebrating its "30 Years of Service With Youth."

Receving the National George Washington Carver Award will be Willie Stargell. A tribute to the late Dr. Alma Illery of Pittsburgh, whose tireless efforts made it possible to bring this honor nationally to the famed Black scientist, will also be included in the Luncheon program.

Activities during the Carver Week celebration, January 1-4, include photographic exhibits, radio/TV tributes, and participation by Pittsburgh and diocese school children.

WHAT'S IN SACRAMENTO'S FUTURE?

You tell us

Check One

- ☐ A Mayor without administrative powers (as is now the case).
- ☐ A Mayor with executive authority (like San Francisco and Los Angeles)
- ☐ A Mayor somewhere in between.
- ☐ An entirely new approach to the Office of Mayor.

HOW BLACK CHILDREN COPE...

the number of correct responses from age eight to age ten in both standard and nonstandard English. On an absolute basis, whites still score higher than Blacks on standard English.

However, Blacks are not significantly different from whites in their rate of improvement in responding to standard English sentences. Interpreting the rate of improvement as reflecting underlying mental abilities such as memory and comprehension of language, Hall insists that even while this does not "prove" equal intelligence between Black and white, "we are justified in drawing the conclusion that Blacks are not inferior to whites in their learning ability."

In a school setting, however, this may be hard to recognize.

For instance, white students on an average get 80 per cent of the responses to standard English correct, compared to 40 per cent for Blacks. Both improve so that white children get 90 per cent correct by age ten while Black children average 70 per cent. In an absolute sense the Blacks have had to "cover more ground" in order to gain this linguistic.

But if they have learned a "much larger share of the linguistic pie," as Hall puts it, they still lag behind in an absolute sense. Such children would be likely to score similarly "low" on a school-administered IQ test.

Thus Hall argues that the school ought to pay more attention to the rate of improvement of Blacks to assess their "real" intelligence.

Probing further into his data, Hall noted that most of the time there was a positive correlation between the number of standard forms used correctly and the number of translations from nonstandard English.

This didn't hold with the negation, "I don't have any" or "I don't have none." In both standard and nonstandard English, the double negative is used. This would mean that "receiving" such a grammatical form in a sentence would not require a translation by either Black or white - it represents an "overlap," a part of both of their "languages."

This finding leads Hall to make some persuasive arguments.

He does not advocate separate racial tests. A Black who tests well on a nonstandard English test may not necessarily be equipped to do well in a college. On the other hand, there should be no need for a choice between giving up totally the Black language, or by extension, "blackness," or not doing well in the larger society.

At this point, the grammatical overlap between standard and nonstandard English is largely unclarified and there is no way of telling how large or small it may be. "I hate to say it," Halls says, "but we need further research.

To say that a language that is different is not deficient hardly matters if being linguistically different interferes with your life."

HEAD FOR THE HILLS

Some people can only escape the city hustle and noise on the weekend — but now you can escape all week long by living in Sacramento's ideal north area, only minutes from McClellan Air Force Base, with the most sensible prices.

At Foothills you have a choice of 3- & 4-bedroom, 1½- & 2-bath homes. Compare the extra living space and conveniences — room by room, feature by feature — with other homes in the area selling for $2,000 to $5,000 higher. Only then will you begin to understand why McClellan families have looked to Larchmont for their home needs for over 20 years. And why more Sacramento families buy Larchmont Homes than any other brand!

Come see our 3 furnished models. Open daily from 10:00 a.m. to 6 p.m. If you'd like more information, call us at 334-2666.

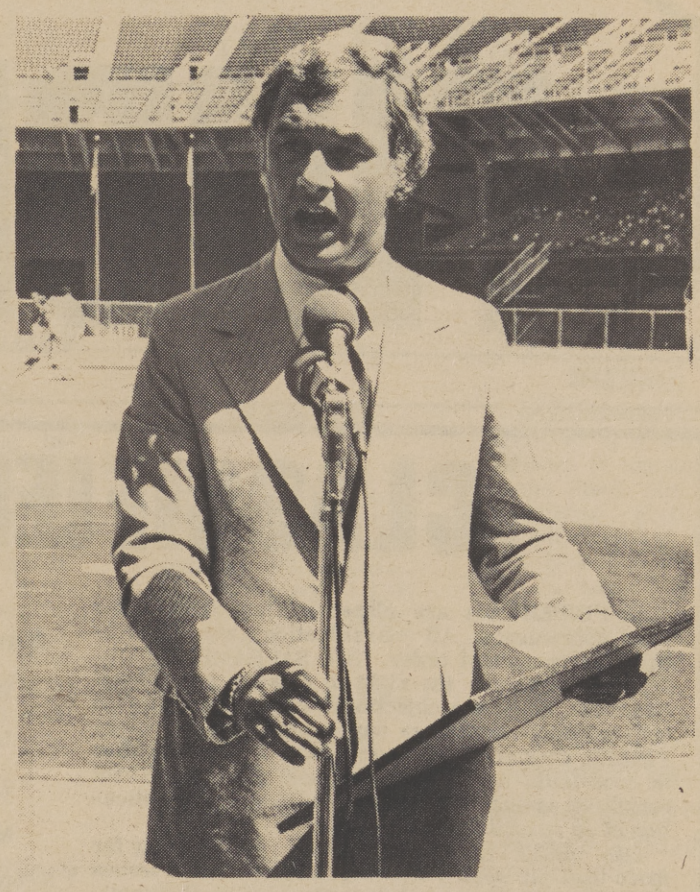
PULLING OUT OF THE RACE



Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, Senator George R. Moscone, this week announced that he would not seek his party's nomination to run for governor this year. Senator Moscone said that is was hard for him to find one single reason for not running, but added that a general lack of public interest and scarce finances attributed to his decision not to continue his three-year-effort to become governor. Senator Moscone attributed the lack of "public interest" to a governmental crisis, such as "Watergate." Senator Moscone said that he had learned much, in his three years as an active candidate, of people and their needs.
